

Personal Interviews

Atkinson, Diane. "Atkinson Interview." E-mail interview. 1 Feb. 2015. We first learned of historian Diane Atkinson while reading her book "The Suffragettes in Pictures." As a busy author (who has written several other books on the suffragettes as well), she did not have a lot of time to invest in responding to our questions, but the insight she was able to offer us was useful in shaping our own views of the suffrage movement. We quoted Atkinson on our Militant Tactics and Leadership pages.

Schlimgen, Veta. "Schlimgen Interview." E-mail interview. 11 Feb. 2015. This was a personal interview we conducted with Dr. Veta Schlimgen, a history professor at Gonzaga University. The interview was conducted over email, but she sent us audio clips which we used on several pages of our website. This was an excellent interview, as she gave us a lot of great information on Emmeline Pankhurst, as well as on the larger women's suffrage movement.

Talbot, Mary. "Talbot Interview." E-mail interview. 3 Feb. 2015. We interviewed British writer Mary Talbot, author of "Sally Heathcote: Suffragette," and she provided us with helpful explanations for several aspects of the women's suffrage movement and gave us a suggestion for further reading. We used a quote of her on our Legacy page.

Winslow, Barbara. "Winslow Interview." Telephone interview. 3 Feb. 2015. Historian Barbara Winslow is also a professor at Brooklyn College and author of several books, including "Sylvia Pankhurst: Sexual Politics and Political Activism." We were fortunate enough to be able to interview Winslow about Emmeline

Pankhurst, and she provided us with insightful answers to our questions and a brief overview of the entire movement. Her explanations were incredibly enlightening. We quoted her interview responses throughout our entire project.
